REAL AND NEGATIVE BOOMS.

There can be absolutely no question of the increasing attention that Governor Hughes is attracting all over the country as the possible nominee of the Republican party for president of the United States in 1908. But "attention"—that is, the fact that a man is being talked about as a "possibility," that nobody is openly criticizing him or condemning his course as a public officer or vigorously opposing his candidacy—is a million miles from an actual nomination; it is not delegate-getting, the thing that creates majorities and that really counts for something in a national convention, nor is it of necessity a creator of popularity, although we must admit that the more a good, clean, able, honest man gets into the public eye, the more he gets discussed as a presidential candidate, the greater are the chances that he will grow in popularity. So the rapidly increasing attention that Governor Hughes is provoking—without, obviously, any effort or any measurable desire on his part to do so—cannot be otherwise than helpful to his candidacy, if indeed it can consistently be called "his" candidacy at all, up to date.

Is it far out of the way to denominate the "Hughes boom" a negative boom, the Hughes popularity a negative popularity? The rank and file of the average of good, "straight," honest Republicans everywhere admire the governor as a man of high character and ability, of unwavering courage, of absolute independence, in so far as a man in public office can be purely independent; and most of them sincerely and heartily approve his policies and his administration. But when it comes to actually taking him up, endorsing him squarely as their choice for presidential nominee and pushing him vigorously to the front for that honor, how many of them can honestly and conscientiously wholly dissociate their preference for Hughes from a dislike of Roosevelt? That is what we mean by a "negative boom," a "negative popularity." How much of the Hughes movement is merely a political play against Roosevelt—a trig to his own wheel or that of his man Taft?—New York Commercial.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Dr. J. Henry Jackson.

The death of Dr. J. Henry Jackson, which occurred at his home in Barre on Friday of last week following an operation for appendicitis, removes one of the best and most widely known physicians in Vermont, and one whom the state could ill afford to lose.—Vergennes Enterprise.

The state of Vermont, and particularly Barre, has lost a great physician in Dr. J. Henry Jackson, who died as the result of an attack of appendicitis last week. He had a rare personality and a manner of address which was most soothing to a sick patient. He was skilled as a physician, but the drugs he administered furnished a small part of the healing process. He was of a sympathetic nature and made a person with whom he came in contact feel that he had struck a friend as well as a physician. He was possessed of an ideal personality for his profession.—Montpelier Journal.

The death of Dr. J. Henry Jackson of Barre removes one of the best known and most highly esteemed residents of the state. Doctor Jackson occupied an enviable position in his profession, was identified with all progressive movements, was the possessor of a large-hearted and generous nature, and was accorded the warmest regard by all who came in contact with him.—Montpelier Argus.

MONTPELIER

The owners of the Aldrich farm on the Barre road are having it surveyed into building lots. Considerable inquiry has been made in regard to the property, and the owners, Messrs. Corry, Devault and Frost, decided to plot the property. The land near the railroad tracks will not be offered for the present, and may later be offered for the purpose of building stone sheds, if there is such a demand.

The semi-finals of the golf tournament for the championship of the Montpelier Country club were played off Thursday afternoon. The result of the matches were: E. D. Field won from C. E. Lowe, while C. F. Lowe won from G. K. Putnam. The finals will be played off this afternoon between Mr. Lowe and Mr. Field.

On Wednesday afternoon Miss Rose E. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Croto, and Ira A. Robinson, both of Marshfield, were married by Rev. J. J. Culliton at St. Augustine's parish house. The ceremony was performed in the presence of Hubert and Miss Lydia Croto, brother and sister of the bride. The couple are well known in Plainfield, the groom having worked for several years on the Houlter hill, while the bride has made her home with her parents, out of the village on the Marshfield road. They will make their home in Marshfield.

The marriage of Mrs. Emma Woodward to Amos E. Worthen Whittemore was performed by Dr. E. O. Thayer, pastor of the Hedding Methodist church, Wednesday at the Methodist parsonage in Barre. Both of the contracting parties are known in this city, having lived here for some time, and were employed at Heaton hospital, where they finished work a few days ago. The bride was granted a divorce in the county court the first of this session from Francis B. Woodward on the grounds of wilful desertion by Mr. Woodward. The second marriage occurred eight days after a divorce was granted.

DROWNING AT VERNON.

George M. Phetteplace Evidently Fell from Boat Into River.

Brattleboro, Sept. 21.—George M. Phetteplace of Vernon was drowned in the Connecticut river yesterday near Hinsdale ferry. Everett Stockwell, who has charge of the ferry, went home and when he returned he found one of his small boats missing. He went across the river and found the body floating a few feet from the shore. It is supposed that Phetteplace started to row across, not finding the regular ferryman. The boat was not upset. Phetteplace was 40 years old and unmarried. He had been drinking heavily the past week, it is said.

THE BUCKEYED VIEW.

[Being a free versified paraphrase of the impressions of the "Buckeye Daisies," the batch of "prize girls" from Ohio who lately visited Europe.—Vide Daily Telegraph, Aug. 22.]
Fresh returned from ancient Yorpor,
The delightful Buckeye Daisies
Have recorded their impressions
In illuminating phrases.

They have seen, these maids entrancing,
Sights that set their pulses dancing,
Spices and palaces galore,
Statues, pictures by the score—
Titian, Michael Angelo—
But they never saw, oh, no!

Any sight or any show
Half as great as Ohio:
Anything so fine and frank
As the manhood of the Yank.

Somewhat hazy in their praises
Are the latest Buckeye Daisies,
They declare in tones emphatic,
Germans are "too automatic."

And the chivalrous Parisian,
Though he dwells in fields Elysian,
In their free and easy way
They pronounce a "pooping" day.
Clumsey to the Buckeye view
Is the Englishwoman's shoe,
And, although they have confessed
Her complexion is the best,
Unreluctantly they add
That her style in dress is bad.

Unexpected are the phases
Of the gentle Buckeye Daisies,
How a maiden transatlantic
Can be so insane and frantic
As to wed a titled gent
Of European descent—
This prodigiously amazes
Patriotic Buckeye Daisies.

Yet, though liberal of blame,
We adore you all the same;
For, delightful to relate,
You have been aligned to state
That "The Englishman is great,"
And for this, O Buckeye Daisies,
We forgive you all your phrases.
—Funch.

The Difference.

"Say, pa, what's the difference between an optimist and a pessimist?"
"An optimist, Johnnie, thinks the times are ripe—a pessimist thinks they're rotten."—Harper's Weekly.

Gagged.

"Post always goes to the dentist's with his wife."
"The ideal! What for?"
"It's the only time he ever has a chance to speak to her."—Harper's Weekly.

Caught a Tartar.

"So you want my daughter?" said the stern parent.
"Yes, sir," answered the young suit-or modestly.
"Hub!" granted the old man. "Got any money?"
"Yes, sir. How high do you quote her?"—Cleveland Leader.

A Dangerous Question.

"Would you marry again, George, if I were to die?"
"No, indeed!"
"You brute! You want the world to believe that I'm such a bad wife you would not want another!"—Houston Post.

A wise man will desire no more than he can get justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully and leave contentedly.—Heron.

TELEGRAPHERS SEE
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Union Officials Have Two Hours' Secret Conference With Him.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Secretary Loeb stated yesterday that there would be no statement issued regarding the visit to the president Wednesday of Percy Thomas, deputy president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, and Daniel Russell, chief of their board of strategy.

Loeb at first denied they had visited the president, saying the men who had talked with him on the porch were workmen. Yesterday he said:
"There is nothing to be said about the matter now."
Asked if he wished a denial sent out that Russell and Thomas saw the president, Loeb said: "No."
It had been widely reported that negotiations with President Roosevelt had been started looking toward a settlement of the strike, and while knowledge of the fact was discreetly denied by strike leaders and officers of the companies, it is known that Thomas had a two hours' talk with the president here, and that this conference was by appointment.
